Report released in Gainey death

Inadequate safety measures, storm were contributing factors, says TSB

Causes, factors related to death

- Setting sail from Lunenburg didn't take into full consideration the long-range forecasts for adverse weather.
- Because of a lack of communication, Gainey was told to go below and sleep but another officer told her to perform ship checks. She was also unaware the order had been given to stay away from the port breezeway, where it was believed she was swept overboard.
- Gainey was likely fatigued from a lack of sleep.
- A large wave hit the port side of the ship.
- Safety nets were not rigged above the bulwarks of the main deck and breezeway.
- The effectiveness of safety lines were diminished because harnesses were not worn and there was a lack of fastening points.

Risks

- There was no alarm system to immediately alert the crew in other parts of the ship.
- An absence of an effective safety management structure.
- Crew members responsible for the trainees lacked formal training in crisis management.
- The unstructured training program made it difficult to assess trainees' abilities.
- Relying on inexperienced trainees left the crew to take on more duties which compromises safety.

The Picton Castle moves through the Harbour in the Parade of Sails in Halifax in 2004. Crew member Laura Gainey died in 2006, after being swept off its deck during a storm. The report investigating her death was released today by the Transportation Safety Board.

JENNIFER TAPLIN
jennifer.taplin@metronews.ca

Deciding to set sail with a storm approaching, and a lack of safety nets were just two of the factors contributing to Laura Gainey's death.

The final report by the Transportation Safety Board released yesterday examined how Gainey was swept off the deck of the Picton Castle on Dec. 8, 2006.

"We came to the conclusion that with strong safety measures in place, loss of life can be avoided," said Paul van den Berg, the investigator in charge.

The Picton Castle had already delayed its departure from Lunenburg because of the weather, and they were under financial pressure to get going.

The crew was exhausted when the captain gave them all shots of rum during the storm, a practice the report called "questionable." When Gainey was swept away by a large wave, two crew members at the helm immediately heard screams from the port side aft.

Gainey was briefly spotted in the water, but the crew was unable to maintain visual contact.

"On four occasions during the early morning hours some crew members reported hearing someone shouting from somewhere off the ship, but no one was seen or found," the report said.

The search was called off several days later.

Picton Castle Capt. Daniel Moreland said yesterday he and the crew are "devastatingly sorry" for Gainey's loss.

"The findings confirm our strongly held belief that Laura was obeying orders and carrying out her tasks as the excellent crew member she was," he wrote in a statement.

He vowed to learn all he could from the tragedy, but a statement from the Gainey family said there's more to be done. They want the ship to implement a safety strategy and cut off ties with the Cook Islands Registry because of their "mystifying and disappointing action."

"Our goal was to find out what led to Laura's death and the (board's) thorough and independent investigation has given us this information. We are grateful for this and closure it brings."

The family also thanked the crew for their "exceptional efforts" in trying to find their daughter.

Picton Castle

- Actions taken by ship since death
- Strobe lights are to be worn by everyone while on deck.
 - Breezeways lit at night.
 - No one is to walk alone on deck.
 - Crew and trainees are to be monitored to make sure they get enough rest.
 - Everyone must wear a harness at night and in bad weather.
 - All trainees must wear a harness when aloft.

The Transportation Safety Board said yesterday safety management systems are needed for all training vessels no matter what flag they fly. The Picton Castle is registered under the Cook Islands.

In its report, it encouraged Transport Canada to take a 'proactive position' with the International Maritime Organization to bring all sailing vessels within appropriate international conventions.

Premier wants HRM by Design passed by council

DEVELOPMENT Rodney MacDonald wants to pass HRM by Design within a few days, even though it would ban the Waterside Centre that MacDonald championed.

"I stand by what I said last week. Council made the wrong decision (in blocking Waterside), said the premier. Under HRM by Design, the Waterside Centre could not be built because it doesn't meet certain standards. But MacDonald said the Waterside Centre was developed through the old process so it shouldn't be held to the new standards.

"You can't expect any development to start from scratch in that regard. That wouldn't be fair," he said.

Legislature New session starts

Premier Rodney MacDonald chats with Justice Minister Cecil Clarke at Province House yesterday.

New kiddie porn bill

But cops don't know if it will lead to charges

PAUL MCLEOD
paul.mcleod@metronews.ca

The MacDonald government has a new bill it says will get tougher on child pornography, but police officers couldn't name a single instance in which the bill would have lead to charges.

Justice Minister Cecil Clarke's bill makes it a criminal offence if someone comes across child pornography and doesn't report it. The law would also protect people who report child pornography from retaliation.

The problem is police officers at a government press conference yesterday couldn't think of a time this law would have lead to charges.

"I can't recall any investigations where that was the case," said Det. Const. Chris Gorman, who has spent the last four years tracking down child predators as part of the ICE police unit. When asked again, Gorman said "I don't understand how I would know who has neglected to report."

It was one of several tumultuous moments at the press conference. The bill would punish people who falsely and maliciously report someone accessing child pornography. But Halifax Regional Police Superintendent Mike Burns said he wasn't aware of such a case ever happening.

Minister Clark also could not specifically name any police agency that had requested this new bill.

Still, officers expressed support for the plan.

Gorman said it would be another tool at their disposal.

al. Burns compared the bill to existing laws that require reporting child abuse.

RCMP spokesman Mark Gallagher said the bill would raise awareness to people who were uncertain of what to do, and send the message that fighting child pornography is a shared responsibility.

The justice minister insisted the bill would offer vital protection to people worried about reporting child pornography. "We have individuals who are uncertain about 'if I report this will I lose my job? Will I be facing retribution for reporting something of concern? They will be protected. People need to be protected in the workplace," said Clarke.

Cecil Clarke, justice minister

Opposition questions government's motives

paul.mcleod@metronews.ca

Opposition parties questioned the government's motives as it introduced a new child pornography bill yesterday.

The bill would make it illegal for people not to report child pornography if they see it. The Liberals and NDP questioned its effectiveness.

"It's going to make innocent Nova Scotians fearful that all of the sudden they should be more observant of their colleagues or that they should be fearful that somehow they're going to be dragged into an unfortunate situation, which they had absolutely nothing to do with," said Liberal justice critic Michel Samson.

"We want to make sure the government is focused on getting real results here, rather than just thumping their chest and making it look like they're doing something."

Elderly man dead after car crash

ACCIDENT An 86-year-old man died at the scene after crashing his car in Cole Harbour just after midnight yesterday.

Police responded to the accident at 12:15 a.m. on they Dyke Road, leading from Rainbow Haven Beach.

The car was partially submerged in water. RCMP are investigating.

But Premier Rodney MacDonald said the bill was an important step in cracking down on child pornography.

"We need to do all we can to protect our young people. The message the opposition would send by voting against that would be they don't have those interests at the forefront where the government does," said MacDonald.

NDP justice critic Bill Estabrooks said he supports the spirit of the bill, but wants to see the details before he supports it.

Estabrooks questioned how the bill would be enforceable and said it was being used to divert attention away from issues like the economy.

"There's lots of politics in this one. I think they're trying to deflect from some of the issues that we'll be bringing forward," he said.

Extra hour good for hearts

Study shows fewer heart attacks day after clocks go back

LINDSAY JONES
lindsay.jones@metronews.ca

Turning back the clocks this weekend isn't just good for the social life.

A new Swedish study published in Science Daily says putting back the clocks in the fall slightly reduces the risk of heart attacks the next day. In the spring, when clocks jump forward, the risks increase on average by five per cent during the following week.

QEII Health Sciences Centre cardiologist Nicholas Giacomantonio, who wasn't involved in the observational study, says the connection between the heart and sleep is well-known and has to do with the body's natural changes in blood pressure that take place when asleep and awake.

When people go to sleep, their heart rate slows and blood pressure drops.

Between 6 a.m. and noon, when most people wake up, their blood pressure rises slightly.

"If you deprive that rhythm from occurring, you can have more heart attacks and more strokes," Giacomantonio said.

That's why some shift workers or those who have trouble sleeping tend to have high blood pressure.

"In the shifting of clocks, sleep deprivation keeps you from getting that natural drop in blood pressure," he added.

Before the clocks go back in the spring, Giacomantonio suggested people prepare by getting an extra hour of sleep a few

More importantly, though, he advised people to control the risk factors for heart attacks and strokes, like high blood pressure, high cholesterol, diabetes and smoking.

Exercising and taking medication regularly are key too.

Party later than usual or catch a few extra Zs?

That's the conundrum facing many this weekend as daylight savings time ends and the clocks go back one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday.

Rachel Morehouse, a Dalhousie University psychiatry professor and the medical director of the Saint John, N.B.-based Atlantic Health Sciences Sleep Centre, says the latter is much healthier.

"It's probably the only night most of us get as much sleep as we need," she said.

"As long as we don't push it and think that we can stay up even later because we're going to get the extra hour."

With the exception of babies and teenagers, Morehouse says people should get, on average, at least eight hours of sleep, or as much as they need to feel rested the next day.

But most don't.

"This time change is giving people a chance to be normal," she says.

However, Morehouse cautions that people will only benefit from the ex-

Tips for keeping little ghosts and ghouls safe

JENNIFER TAPLIN
jennifer.taplin@metronews.ca

Police officers will be dressed up as, well, cops tonight.

The Halifax District RCMP and Halifax Regional Police are putting out extra officers tonight to make sure all the Supermans, pirates, princesses and witches score candy and get home safely.

"We would like to remind motorists to slow down and take care while travelling Halloween night, as there are many children who will be very excited on the roadways and might not be aware of vehicles," said RCMP Insp. Darrell Beaton.

"There will be an enhanced RCMP presence in our communities to ensure the safety of the children and to deter any acts of vandalism."

Here are some tips for a safe Halloween:

- Children should be accompanied by a responsible adult.
- Plan a safe route so parents know where their older kids will be at all times.
- Set a time for their return home. Make sure that your child is old enough and responsible enough to go out by themselves.
- Let children know not to cut through back alleys, pathways and fields.
- Try to limit criss-crossing the street. Go down one side of the street and up the other to limit the number of times you cross.

"There will be an enhanced RCMP presence in our communities to ensure the safety of the children."

Insp. Darrell Beaton

- Never go inside a house, apartment or car of someone you don't know. Stay on the doorstep or sidewalk while trick-or-treating.

- Make sure they know to stay in populated places and don't go off the beaten track.
- Stay in well lighted areas.
- Stop only at familiar house-

- es in your own neighbourhood unless they are accompanied by an adult.
- Instruct your children not to eat any treats until they bring them home to be examined by you.
- Make sure your child carries a flashlight, glow stick or has reflective tape on their costume to make them more visible to cars.

Limit kids' candy overindulgence

SWEETS Halloween is perhaps the only time of year when it's acceptable to overindulge on junk food.

But public health dietitian Eileen MacKenzie warns that even a little Halloween candy can have an unhealthy effect on your child.

"Halloween candy should be eaten in moderation."

"However, if you spread the candy out over a long period of time, a child may get used to having it and will crave sugar long after the treats are gone."

MacKenzie says parents should set rules when it comes to Halloween candy, only allowing a child one piece after dinner.

The trials and tribulations of moving house

Because I Said So

Cathy MacDonald
sixmacs@ns.sympatico.ca

Our house is for sale. It is a hard process. Oh, I'm not talking about lawyers, and real estate agents, and offers and counter-offers. No, that's easy. I'm talking about getting teenagers to clean their room. THAT's hard.

"Do the girls have carpet or hardwood floor in their room?" asked the younger boy wonder the day of the first showing.

My husband, who is a businessman and travels frequently, looked blank. I drew a similar blank.

I have not entered the teen queen pit for years. I am convinced I'm going to trip over one of the thousand items on their floor, break a hip, and not be found for days — unless someone needs 10 bucks for the movies. Then they'll come looking for me.

"Finding that out will be one of the cleaning surprises today," I said brightly. No one was buying it.

After 12 years, it's time to sell the old homestead. Believe it or not, it's too big for all six of us.

The teen queens are rarely home, and the boy wonders want a modern place with a basement rec room, not a century-old home with a TV den tucked off a large main hallway.

Across the hallway is the living room where my husband and I sit, and occasionally yell out endearments like: "What are you watching?" "Turn that off, NOW!" and "Who said you could play PlayStation?" I'm gonna miss that proximity. The boys? Not so much.

I'll miss the main staircase, where the boy wonders slid down on cookie sheets, completely oblivious to the glass door at the bottom. I'll also miss the kitchen, where at the ages of three and four they played Captain Hook and Peter Pan — with real knives. Mommy almost had her first real heart attack.

There's the veranda, once a big outdoor playpen and now where we take prom pictures of beautiful teen queens. There is the large living room, where one year the Christmas tree fell on the baby. But we didn't see it. We were in the kitchen, on the phone with poison control. So many memories to take with us.

"I've got an idea," the older teen queen said matter-of-factly, as I mistily looked at the back yard, where four kids, three cats and two dogs once romped. "Let's rent a dumpster, and throw everything out."

Well, that's one way to find out what kind of flooring is in your room...

Time to keep lights on during daylight

PAUL MCLEOD
paul.mcleod@metronews.ca

If you've got an old car you could soon face a $164 fine for not turning your lights on during the day.

The government proposed new changes to the Motor Vehicle Act yesterday that would make it illegal not to use daytime headlights at all times. Automatic lights have been mandatory for all vehicles in Canada since 1990.

But all vehicles made before then that don't have automatic lights will have to keep their low beams on no matter how bright the sun is. Fine for a first offence is $164, the second is $222 and everything after that is $337.

"Daytime running lights

"Daytime running lights have been shown to reduce daytime crashes by three to 10 per cent."

Murray Scott,
transportation minister have been shown to reduce daytime crashes by three to 10 per cent," said Transportation Minister Murray Scott.

"This will help ensure everyone benefits from the added safety that daytime running lights provide."

However, vintage cars that have an antique licence will be exempt because of questions whether their charging systems could handle the constant light use. Vehicles made as recently as 25 years ago can apply for these specialty licences.

The bill would also allow private snow plows to drive over medians on highways. Right now only emergency vehicles or government plows are allowed.

News in brief

TOURISM The high cost of gas and the high Canadian dollar kept Americans away this summer — and tourism operators shouldn't expect to see them coming back for at least another two years. John Somers, the executive director of Nova Scotia Tourism, is predicting the downswing in U.S. visitors will continue until at least 2010. "Nova Scotia is very vulnerable to this trend," Somers told local tourism operators who gathered for a tourism summit in Stellarton on Wednesday. However, Europeans are already accustomed to gas prices that are approaching $2 per litre. Some local operators reported having visitors from Europe this year who stayed longer because gas was so cheap for them.

FINE Business owners may soon find themselves shelling out cash for some prime advertising space in Truro. The town has started mailing letters to businesses that have illegally posted their signs on utility poles in Truro. The offence is covered under the land-use bylaw in place since 1998 and could result in a summary offence ticket of $222.

Guardianship Act to see revival in fall

LISA WRIGHTON
for Metro Halifax

Lori Watkins is deciding between eating or heating this winter. The 53-year-old grandmother can't afford to do both.

She's struggling to care for her special-needs granddaughter, Alison, who lives with her. Alison was born with craniosynostosis, a condition causing the bones in the skull fuse together prematurely. She also has attention deficit disorder and is developmentally delayed.

While the government covers the costs of medication and travel to the pediatrician, Watkins' monthly $506 social assistance check is barely enough to put food on the table. Fresh fruit and vegetables are a treat, saved for Alison only.

"I'll go hungry before she will — and I have," she says.

She could have handed Alison over to the government, and Community Services would have paid a foster family to take over. But Watkins says that was never an option.

"I'm not having a stranger raising her."

Carvell Gray and his wife Joyce, who are caring for their granddaughter Jesselyn, say they're slowly going broke. The Digby couple, both 69 and retired, have almost run through their RRSPs.

Gray says he doesn't want to apply for welfare.

Lori Watkins and her granddaughter, Alison, in their Beaver Bank home. Watkins says she's struggling to pay the bills, and can't get help from the province to care for her developmentally-delayed granddaughter

He wouldn't qualify anyway, because he owns his own home.

"What I want is grandparental assistance."

Lucas Wide, Community Services spokesman, says there's nothing available like that.

"What's available now is what's available to any person who is looking after children within a family like that," he says.

"We do our best to keep (children) in families."

Wide says other family members can also take in children, and can apply for income assistance "just like any other ... person would apply who is on a fixed income."

There are about 900 Nova Scotia children living with at least one grandparent. Harold Theriault, MLA for Digby-Annapolis Valley, says if the province helped grandparents, fewer children would be in provincial care because more grandparents could afford to take them in.

Last spring he proposed the Guardianship Act, a bill to grant support for low-income grandparents. It never got off the ground. He plans to re-introduce it in this fall's legislature sitting.

Insurance case wraps up today

JENNIFER TAPLIN
jennifer.taplin@metronews.ca

MONEY Auto insurance rates in Nova Scotia have dropped, but by how much depends on whom you talk to.

The Insurance Bureau of Canada says rates are down 26.9 per cent since 2003. But lawyer Barry Mason said it's only down 8.5 per cent since the province put a cap of $2,500 on soft tissue claims.

His clients, two women injured in accidents that weren't their fault, hired Mason to challenge the legislation in court.

"Really they're doing it on behalf of all Nova Scotians because the cap has a very draconian effect on

Decision

• Now the case has been heard in court, the decision could take months.

people," he said outside the courtroom yesterday.

Mason said his numbers come from testimony given by an independent actuary.

"The profits have certainly gone up significantly but there's been hardly no corresponding, meaningful decrease in premiums."

Bill Adams, with the Insurance Bureau of Canada, which is an intervener in the case, said the cap serves its purpose by reducing premiums for drivers.

"With a 26.9 per cent decrease in auto insurance premiums attributable to the cap, we believe it has been a successful reform that has served Nova Scotians well," he wrote in an e-mail. "Thus our defense of it."

The case has taken weeks in the Supreme Court and is expected to wrap up today.

"The auto insurance industry has a significant interest in this issue and looks forward to Justice (Walter) Goodfellow's decision," Adams said.

Mason said he's asking for the cap to be declared unconstitutional.

If successful in his bid, Mason said the decision could have significant consequences for Nova Scotian accident victims.

Store owner furious with province

CONSTRUCTION Transportation Minister Murray Scott may soon get the keys to his own grocery store.

Tom Everill, owner of Craig's Grocery in Amherst Shore, is so upset with the continued closure of Route 366 that he's thinking of turning his business' keys over to the province's transportation minister.

"This is the start of the fourth week and they are no further ahead than they were three weeks ago," Everill said.

business worth

• Everill said he built the business from a $60,000-a-year operation to a $600,000 one, but it's all in danger of drying up because people can't get to his store, restaurant and liquor outlet.

He said he was originally told it would take just two weeks, but now the project is in its fourth week with no end in sight. "It's killing my business."

Crews from Transportation and Infrastructure Renewal closed Highway 366 near Amherst Shore Provincial Park several weeks ago to replace an old wooden culvert with a new concrete one.

Because of the closure, motorists are forced to take a 15-km detour. Everill said the work keeps potential customers from coming to his store — from both sides.

Returning to the Atlantic graveyard

It was June 30, 1923, when a wireless operator received a Morse code message from an American Coast Guard cutter instructing a midwife how to safely deliver a child.

That day, Sydney Mines resident Augustine (Gus) Walsh became one of only two people known to have been born on the graveyard of the Atlantic, better known as Sable Island.

On Saturday, some 85 years after his birth, Walsh made his second visit back to the island since leaving at the age of two.

"I would call it an oasis in the middle of the Atlantic," said Walsh, one of two people born on the island since 1920.

"It made me very happy, not sad, because I was able to go back in memory of

"We certainly go out there, not regularly, but at times we have to go out there. Given that we had an opportunity to bring him out there with no extra cost and he was willing to do it, so we undertook it" my mom and father and was able to visit my birthplace."

That wireless operator was his father, M.J. Walsh, who was transferred from Sable Island to Fogo Island, Newfoundland, a short time after the birth of his son.

Walsh remembers his parents talking about horseback riding on the island famous for its ponies.

He visited for the first time in 1998, and says he probably won't visit a third time.

Tim Surette, director of Maritime services for the Canadian Coast Guard, said hundreds of people visit the island each year. The Walsh visit, though, was unique.

"We certainly go out there, not regularly, but at times we have to go out there. Given that we had an opportunity to bring him out there with no extra cost, and he was willing to do it, we undertook it."

Downturn hits food banks

Canada's food banks may have a harder time feeding the poor this winter as the global economic crisis leads major companies to slash donations, the nation's food bank association said yesterday. While big companies provide the bulk of the food donations, individual giving has also dropped as economic gloom forces people to rein in spending, the association said. REUTERS

PM defends budget deficit turnaround

ECONOMY Prime Minister Stephen Harper defended yesterday his government's about-face on the possibility of running a budget deficit next year, saying that sudden changes have made the economic future tough to predict.

During the campaign for the Oct. 14 election, he had ruled out budget deficits, but since his government's re-election, he and Finance Minister Jim Flaherty have allowed for the possibility of going into the red.

"The truth of the matter is that everything that's happened during — and particularly since — the election indicates that we will not be making any economic predictions in the near future," he said.

"If anything we've had more instability in various markets since the election campaign. The minister of finance, I know, is in the process of consulting with various forecasters and economists. They are giving us a very wide range of possible trajectories for the international economy, which have some consequences on Canada."

Tory cabinet sworn in

'Economy will be job No. 1 in every aspect'

Prime Minister Stephen Harper unveiled a new cabinet yesterday and vowed to defend Canada against a global crisis that he said was making it harder to predict the nation's economic future.

Finance Minister Jim Flaherty, who has become the face of Canada's effort to fend off the growing financial turmoil, stayed in his post as expected. He is due to attend a series of international meetings in the next few weeks on the crisis that is striking Canada with increasing severity.

"The economy ... will be job No. 1 in every aspect of our government," Harper told a news conference.

Harper added several junior ministers to the cabinet, with almost a third of all the jobs going to women. He made the changes after the ruling Conservatives retained power in the Oct. 14 election with a strengthened minority.

During the election campaign, both Harper and Flaherty promised not to run a deficit over the next four years, but they have since changed their tune.

Gail Shea, MP for Egmont, P.E.I., was one of 11 women sworn in to the federal cabinet yesterday. She will serve as minister of fisheries and oceans.

Harper said Ottawa was on track to record a small surplus this year, but he declined to say what would happen after that, citing what he said was increased uncertainty in the Canadian and world economies.

REUTERS

Female ministers

The federal cabinet got a more feminine touch after a higher proportion of women than ever before joined the upper ranks of government yesterday.

The shuffle put 11 women into the 38-member cabinet — eight as full ministers and three as junior ministers — including three rookie Members of Parliament given senior portfolios.

The new female ministers are: Lisa Raitt, minister of natural resources; Leona Aglukkaq, health minister; Gail Shea, minister of fisheries and oceans; and Lynn Yelich, minister of state for western economic diversification.

Women returning to cabinet are: Josée Verner, minister of intergovernmental affairs; Rona Ambrose, minister of labour; Diane Finley, minister of human resources and skills development; Bev Oda, minister of international co-operation; Diane Ablonczy, minister of state for small business and tourism; and Marjory LeBreton, government Senate leader.

Climate change to affect creatures differently: Report

SCIENCE Climate change is likely to disrupt food chains by favouring animals with short lifespans over bigger rivals that are worse at tolerating temperature swings, Canadian and German scientists said yesterday.

The researchers said that studies of the physical characteristics of animals showed that all have widely differing "thermal windows" — a range of temperatures in which they best feed, grow and reproduce. That meant that climate change would not affect all equally.

"Climate change will favour species with wide thermal windows, short lifespans, and a large gene pool amongst its population," the journal Science said of the findings.

The son of the former prime minister and host of eTalk Daily and Canadian Idol married fashion stylist Jessica Brownstein yesterday in what was described as a traditional ceremony at St. Patrick's Basilica in downtown Montreal in front of about 60 to 75 people, according to guests.

MANITOBA The fire that killed two boys on the Opaskwayak Cree Nation this week was started by a group of kids playing inside a locked shed, police said Wednesday, CBC News Online reports. Ethan Flett, 6, and Gerrod Head, 7, died after they became trapped in a wooden garden shed in the yard of a house that had been destroyed by a suspicious fire earlier this year.

CHARGED An off-duty New Westminster, B.C., police officer allegedly failed two breathalyzer tests after an unmarked cruiser smashed into a highway sign in North Vancouver, RCMP Cpl. Peter Thiessen said yesterday. The incident involving the 47-year-old female officer occurred on Oct. 16, but police didn't announce it until yesterday.

WELFARE COSTS The Ontario government will spend the next decade taking back welfare costs dumped on cities and towns in the 1990s, but municipalities remain saddled with hefty social housing costs.

Iraqi president wants security deal done

Iraqi President Jalal Talabani urged a swift conclusion yesterday to a long-delayed security pact with the United States that would allow U.S. troops to stay in Iraq through 2011. The agreement, which will replace a United Nations mandate that expires at the end of the year, appeared finalized as late as last week, until Iraqi leaders said they were seeking several changes to the text. Washington is now reviewing the proposals. REUTERS

Race enters final weekend

Republican John McCain and Democrat Barack Obama duelled over the economy yesterday in the last stretch of their fierce fight for the White House, with McCain charging Obama would not do enough to rein in oil company profits.

McCain jumped on the record quarterly profits posted by Exxon Mobil, noting Obama had supported tax breaks for the oil industry in the 2005 energy bill and said, "When I'm president, we're not going to let that happen. "Senator Obama voted for billions in corporate giveaways to the oil companies. I voted against it," McCain told supporters in Defiance, Ohio, as he tried to jump-start a comeback in a race that appears to be tipping toward Obama.

"If I'm elected president, we're going to stop sending $700 billion a year to pay for oil from countries that don't like us very much," McCain said. "We're going to drill off shore and we're going to drill now."

Obama leads McCain in national opinion polls and in key states like Florida and Ohio with five days of campaigning left before Tuesday's presidential election.

At a rally in Sarasota, Fla., Obama referred to yesterday's announcement that the U.S. economy had suffered its sharpest contraction in seven years, and said the drop in gross domestic product reflected the failed Republican economic policies of McCain and President George W. Bush. REUTERS

Economy on top of U.S. troops' worries

ELECTION Four years ago, U.S. troops in Iraq fretted about their buddies being killed in bomb blasts and wondered how the presidential race would affect the war.

Now, with violence in Iraq sharply down and the U.S. economy in danger, they are more worried about what the winner of the Nov. 4 presidential election will do to rescue their savings and

"I've been following this election more than any before ... The economy is a huge issue for us," said Sgt. 1st Class Nathan Shay, a U.S. soldier stationed in Baghdad.

At least 68 dead in India

Eleven bomb blasts in quick succession ripped through the main city of India's troubled northeastern Assam state and three other towns yesterday, killing at least 68 people and wounding 335, police said.

No one has so far claimed responsibility for the bomb blasts, which security analysts said appeared to be co-ordinated.

Assam has been a focus of a separatist insurgency for decades, but it has also recently suffered bomb attacks blamed on Islamist militants from neighbouring Bangladesh.

Many of yesterday's blasts were in crowded markets in the state, and many bombs were hidden in motorcycles or scooters.

Firefighters doused the smouldering remains of cars and motorcycles at one of the blast sites in Guwahati. One of the blasts targeted a high-security zone with a court as well as offices and the homes of senior police officials.

Television channels showed some people lying on the streets, their clothes soaked in blood. Some of the walking wounded were helped into ambulances by bystanders and police.

"Immediately after the blast there was complete darkness for a while, and I later saw several bodies and severed limbs all around," said Bikash Goyal, a witness in Guwahati.

A spokesman at Assam's chief minister's office said 36 people were killed in four blasts in Guwahati. The other 32 people were killed in three other towns in the state.

Warming affecting Arctic, Antarctic ice

CLIMATE Both Antarctica and the Arctic are getting less icy because of global warming, scientists said yesterday in a study that extends evidence of man-made climate change to every continent.

Detection of a human cause of warming at both ends of the earth also strengthens a need to understand ice sheets on Antarctica and Greenland that would raise world sea levels by about 70 metres if they all melted, they said.

"We're able for the first time to directly attribute warming in both the Arctic and the Antarctic to human influences," said Nathan Gillett of England's University of East Anglia of a study he led with colleagues in the United States, Britain and Japan.

The Arctic has warmed sharply in recent years and sea ice shrank in 2007 to a record low. But Antarctic trends have been confusing — some winters sea ice has expanded in recent decades, leaving doubts for some about whether warming was global.

Women got a raw deal in U.S. election campaign

OmniVision

Rick McGinnis

rick.mcginis@metronews.ca

19th Amendment — if only for one election — sounds absurd, especially in such a hotly contested election, but hear me out.

This has been an extraordinarily depressing election to witness, based on what I'm hearing from women on both sides of the political divide.

"I cannot predict who will win the presidential campaign," wrote women's-rights advocate Helen McCaffrey in the Philadelphia Inquirer, "but I already know who will lose big: All women."

She describes a young male student at the community college where she teaches, wearing a Sarah Palin Is a C-t T-shirt "without shame or even consciousness of what he was doing." She recalls attending a Barack Obama rally where the mention of Palin's name "drew shouts of, 'Stone her.'" She laments that "instead of engaging Palin on the issues, critics attacked attributes that are specifically female. It is Hillary's pantsuit to the power of 10."

It was hard to ignore the treatment Hillary Clinton got in the bitter fight for the Democratic nomination, almost entirely from members of the media and political classes that identified themselves as liberal, or as supporters of her party. After this election, it's hard to imagine a bright woman in either party willingly allowing herself and her family to endure this gauntlet of character assassination.

"Thank God for election 2008," lamented Wendy Button, a speechwriter for Clinton, John Edwards and Obama, on the Daily Beast political website.

"We can talk about the wardrobe and makeup even though most people don't understand the details about Senator Obama's plan with Iraq." A lifelong Democrat, she despairs at how her party has turned on two female candidates with such retrograde, belittling rhetoric.

It's neither likely nor perhaps even desirable, but if half of U.S. voters withdrew their franchise in protest, it would wreak havoc with pollsters and campaign operatives at the very least, and delegitimize a dispiriting and tainted election at best. It's a slap that would perhaps bring otherwise intelligent people back to their senses, and restore some decency to a process that has devolved into a shameful rebuke of a woman's right to participate in her country's political life.

If you live anywhere in this city, work in this city, pay taxes in this city — downtown development (or the lack thereof) has an impact on you.

City council's decision on the Waterside Centre development was a step back for our city. In my mind, council's role is to support development or get out of the way.

When I walk down some of the streets in downtown Halifax with potential clients, we all struggle to tell the difference between a dilapidated structure and a heritage property. Halifax has been sending the wrong message for far too long: We're willing to sacrifice growth, careers, revenue and this city's professional reputation for the sake of the status quo.

What's worse is the message we're sending the next generation: Your future is not a priority.

Halifax has to catch up if we want to stay in the game. We can't afford to say no to growth anymore.

It's not a matter of heritage or development. We know it can be both. But it has to happen now.

A city that's not growing is a city that's dying.

CRTC knocks down costly 'fee for carriage' proposal

Canada's television regulator denied an appeal by major broadcasters to begin charging carrying fees to cable and satellite companies, averting the potential for hefty hikes to Canadians' television bills.

Big broadcasters had complained to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission that it was unfair that cable and satellite companies could air their signals without paying a so-called "fee for carriage." Such fees would have likely been passed along to consumers — likely meaning a $2 to $10 jump in monthly bills.

"All of the major companies in the last few years have managed to consume billion-dollar (advertising) deals," CRTC Chairman Konrad von Finckenstein said. "So clearly the industry is not on the verge of disappearing. So we denied the fee for carriage ... There is just no economic rationale for doing it."

The country's largest cable company, Rogers Communications Inc., welcomed the ruling, which they said could have added millions in costs and meant higher monthly bills for subscribers.

A Rogers official cautioned, however, that subscribers could end up bearing the $60-million cost of a new CRTC fund to support local programming in communities with less than one million people.

The CRTC said cable and satellite companies should be able to absorb the cost, which amounts to 50 cents per subscriber.

Imperial Oil posts record Q3 profits

ENERGY Imperial Oil Ltd.'s third-quarter profit surged 70 per cent as crude prices hit records before the world financial crisis led to a steep drop. Canada's largest oil producer and refiner said yesterday.

Imperial, which is majority owned by U.S. oil major Exxon Mobil Corp. and is a major oil sands player, earned a company-high $1.4 billion, or $1.57 a share, in the quarter, up from year-earlier $816 million, or 88 cents a share.

It had been expected to earn $1.22 a share, according to a Reuters Estimates survey of analysts' forecasts.

Revenue rose 51 per cent to $9.5 billion from $6.3 billion.

The industry has been pumping out strong results for the quarter after oil prices averaged $118.22 US a barrel, up 57 per cent for a year earlier, and Canadian natural gas averaged $7.35 a gigajoule, up 49 per cent.

But investors, facing big stock-price losses, are now focused on future prospects as the subsequent drop in oil prices and the credit crunch point to much smaller 2009 budgets. REUTERS

"You could call it World Series Week," Herzog said. "You've got the old school saying you'd take the Series away from the home fans and all that, but that's stupid since hometown fans (because of high ticket prices) don't get to see the World Series anyway."

MATTHEW WUEST

AUS FOOTBALL The Saint Mary's Huskies have ruled out the return of Hec Crighton-winning quarterback Erik Glavic for the Atlantic University Sport football final on Nov. 7. The Huskies had held a glimmer of hope that Glavic might return from major knee surgery for the Loney Bowl, but he hasn't practised since making a brief comeback attempt in a Sept. 19 win over the Mount Allison Mounties. "He won't be playing," Huskies head coach Steve Sumarah said. "We want him out there playing, but as a team, we've already taken our steps to move forward." Glavic blew out his knee in last year's Uteck Bowl.

Rookie Jack Creighton, who has passed for 27-of-62 for 334 yards, three touchdowns and five interceptions in three starts this season, will get the nod in Glavic's place. The Huskies do expect receiver Carl Hardwick and running back Devon Jones to be healthy by next week.

Rookies lead Mooseheads to win

Sea Dogs 3 Mooseheads 6

MATTHEW WUEST
matthew.wuest@metronews.ca

The Halifax Mooseheads reaped lucrative rewards after making a heavy investment in a rookie-laden lineup.

Rookies contributed the opening five goals and first-year goaltender Mathieu Corbeil made some big-game saves as the Mooseheads earned an unexpected 6-3 victory over the Saint John Sea Dogs last night at the Metro Centre.

The win over one of the top QMJHL contenders was that much more impressive considering it was Halifax's first game without injured star forward Logan MacMillan.

"It's pretty sweet," said Jessyko Bernard, who had a goal and an assist after a top-line promotion.

"The rookies are getting a chance to play, and we're making the most of it."

"But a goal's a goal — it doesn't matter who's scoring it."

Halifax actually looked dead in the water 2:48 in, when Payton Liske scored on Saint John's second shot. But Bernard, Gabriel Desjardins and Alexis Piette scored three times in 59 seconds later that period as the Mooseheads took control.

Piette would respond to a David Stich goal a few minutes later to leave the score 4-2 after a wild first.

Gerrad Grant scored in the second and Yuri Cheremetiev in the third as the Mooseheads improved to 6-11 and left the Sea Dogs frustrated and parading to the penalty box.

"We came to the rink not thinking about the score," said Piette, who was the first star after sitting in the press box as a healthy scratch the previous two games.

"We wanted to work hard and make some plays, and it happened for us."

DiDomenico. He also turned away Mike Thomas and Steven Anthony on point-blank attempts.

"When players score six goals on a good team like this, it's not easy," said Corbeil, who bounced back after being pulled in his only other start on home ice.

"I did my part."

Last night's crowd of 5,201 was the lowest recorded in franchise history, a mark already set three times this season.

Dal women's soccer team is in it to win it

MATTHEW WUEST
matthew.wuest@metronews.ca

The Dalhousie Tigers are a team built for the future. As it turns out, the present looks pretty bright, too.

The Tigers, loaded with first- and second-year players, enter the Atlantic University Sport women's soccer championship this weekend at Huskies Stadium as the third seed.

After a 6-4-3 season, the rebuilding plan is out the window.

"If you had said to me at the beginning of the year, 'You're going to the AUS championship as the third seed, will you take it?' I would have pulled your arm out of the socket (on a handshake)," said Dal head coach Jack Hutchison.

"Right now, we don't talk 'rookie' on this team. We're here to win." The Tigers boast a trio of AUS all-stars — third-years Jeanette Huck and

"Anytime you get to the dance, you should dance."

Jack Hutchison

Kate MacDonald leads the team with four goals.

Kate MacDonald and fifth-year Stephanie Collins — and each of them has contributed to Dal's success.

MacDonald, with four goals, and Huck, with two, are the Tigers' only multi-goal scorers, while Collins is the only player on the team with five years experience.

Although 18 of 24 players on the team are in their first or second years, the Tigers are hoping to win now.

"Anytime you get to the dance, you should dance," Hutchison said.

"That's our approach. These girls are going to a championship, and as far as they're concerned, they want to win it."

Dal plays the P.E.I. Panthers in the quarterfinals today at 1 p.m.

The host Saint Mary's Huskies, seeded fifth, face the St. Francis Xavier X-Women at 3 p.m. Dalhousie and Saint Mary's play in the men's tournament in Sackville, N.B.

Dal wins three major soccer awards

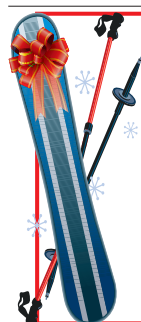

- The Dalhousie Tigers picked up three of Atlantic University Sport's major soccer awards yesterday.
- Men's head coach Pat Nearing, who led the Tigers from last place to third place with a 7-4-2 record, earned coach of the year honours.
- Back Kerry Weymann, who played all 90 minutes in 12 of 13 games, collected rookie of the year.
- Women's head coach Jack Hutchison was also named top coach.

Other award winners were:

- Moncton's Olivier Babin-eau and Memorial's Laura Breen earned men's and women's MVP awards.
- Dartmouth's Curtis Michaelis of the Mount Allison Mounties collected the student-athlete community service award.
- Acadia's Andrea Murphy was top women's rookie.

STEVE GOW
 for Metro Canada

Shortly after the title dissolves from the screen at the beginning of Changeling, it's immediately followed by three words — "A true story."

If you don't remind yourself of that over the next two-plus hours, you might find this drama somewhat overwrought.

Directed by legendary icon Clint Eastwood — who only gets better with age — Changeling tells the emotional journey of Christine Collins (Angelina Jolie), a single mother in 1920s Los Angeles who comes home to find her son missing.

Following weeks of relentless searching, the police suddenly show up with her child, reporters in tow. Great. Only there's a catch: It ain't him.

The problem is that in 1928, the corrupt LAPD had a horrendous public-relations dilemma, so some clod in the force thought it'd be a slick move to replace Collins's son with another kid, hoping she wouldn't notice.

When she obviously and very publicly does, the LAPD does the only thing it can: Make life hell for the poor mom.

Now, what was it rappers NWA used to say about the LAPD again?

Jolie gives a striking, distraught performance of a woman in a time of excessive subservience, rising up against her persecutors "and the horse they rode in on." As pedestrian as those words read, she makes them sing.

Meanwhile, Eastwood creates a moody, authentic world here, capturing great performances and turning a seemingly diminutive tale into compelling drama. As bulky as this film is, its riveting story never tires, and more so, it inspires.

In today's political climate, it's no mistake that many films are decrying the power of institutions and heralding the characters that rise above them.

Who knew that at age 78, Eastwood was still a rebel?

Angelina Jolie delivers a striking performance in Changeling.

RocknRolla

STEVE GOW
 for Metro Canada

REVIEW Man that Guy Ritchie just can't catch a break. In his hometown of London — where RocknRolla has already been released — critics have unfairly panned the British director's latest film.

It seems the central complaint with RocknRolla is that it's too similar to those ol' nuggets of cinematic yore. Like those acclaimed crime dramas, RocknRolla does explore a familiar criminal element of the London underground; namely, those involved in a complex real estate scam gone wrong.

We have the hard-edged mobster (played to perfection by Tom Wilkinson), a Russian billionaire (Karl Roden), a petty street crook (Gerard Butler) and many other seedy characters.

Sure, a lot of the appeal is all flash and visual flair, and the overload of subplots does complicate matters, but one cannot overlook how fun the dialogue and double-crosses are. So what if RocknRolla may be familiar turf; if you miss the Guy Ritchie of the '90s, you will appreciate what you're in for.

REVIEW Zack And Miri Make a Porno hits screens amidst a sea of controversy. The initial poster was banned in the U.S. and several multiplexes are refusing to play the film ... and all because the word "porno" is in the title.

If any of the offended parties actually watched the film, they would discover that it is actually a very sweet romantic comedy about two best friends discovering their love for one another. Granted, they discover it while having sex on camera for a quick buck — but it is very sweet nonetheless.

Seth Rogan and Elizabeth Banks play the title duo in Kevin Smith's Zack and Miri Make a Porno.

There's only one man who could have made this movie and that's Kevin Smith. Ever since his inspirational micro-budget debut, Smith has been the reigning master of raunchy, dialogue-driven comedies with heart.

Over the last few years, the writer/director has seen his once controversial style enter the mainstream thanks to filmmaker Judd Apatow. But rather than be upset, Smith has welcomed members of the Apatow ensemble into his team. Seth Rogan, Elizabeth Banks, Justin Long and Craig Robinson have joined Smith veterans Jason Mewes and Jeff Anderson to create one of the best movies of Smith's career.

Summarizing the plot is pointless because the title says it all. It's also a good litmus test. If the title makes you laugh, you'll probably enjoy the movie. The film is every bit as raunchy and hilarious as you'd imagine.

Make no mistake: This is a silly R-rated comedy that certainly won't go down as one of the greatest films ever made. But the characters are well-drawn, the underlying message is sweet, and the jokes are consistently funny.

This Bond girl is 'different'

Olga Kurylenko's place in franchise history still to be written

Movie feature

RICK MCGINNIS
for Metro Canada

Olga Kurylenko has joined a long line of iconic actresses who've assumed the mantle of Bond girl.

The Ukrainian-born model made an impressive debut in a series of French films before being cast in Quantum of Solace as Camille, a Colombian out for revenge after the death of her parents. This quest ends up complimenting Daniel Craig's James Bond, who is looking to avenge the death of Vesper Lynd (Eva Green) at the end of Casino Royale.

What remains to be seen is whether Kurylenko will join the ranks of Bond co-stars like Diana Rigg and Halle Berry, for whom Bond meant merely another role, or disappear with Daniela Bianchi, Lois Chiles, Claudine Auger and Carey Lowell into Bond footnotes.

In either case, she'll have a unique place among the tiny minority of Bond co-stars who don't end up in bed with the British superspy.

"She's different," Kurylenko says about her Camille. "She's like a Bond in a female body. She's almost equal to him. What is nice is that in this film she has her own story — she exists without Bond. She has her own thing to do, her own mission. She's like his reflection."

As for Craig as Bond, Kurylenko has nothing but praise.

"I thought he was one of the best Bonds. Everyone has their own opinion, but he's more believable. He's tough — you believe he can break your neck. They had to change, so he's a good one."

Quantum of Solace director Marc Forster came

Olga Kurylenko joins Daniel Craig in Quantum of Solace.

"She's like a Bond in a female body. She's almost equal to him. What is nice is that in this film she has her own story — she exists without Bond."

Olga Kurylenko

to Bond from a very different place.

The Swiss director is better known for more intimate, even arty films such as The Kite Runner and Monster's Ball.

He echoes Kurylenko's assessment of what she brought to Bond.

"I saw tapes from all over the world, beautiful women, but either they couldn't act in English, or they weren't real enough or didn't have any depth.

"And then I met 15 women in London, and I thought three or four were interesting, and I had them read with Daniel, and I thought Olga was the most truthful and would be a good mirror image for him."

As for Craig, Forster sees him as essential, and a key reason why he took on a film project that even he thought was completely out of character for him.

"I think he just humanizes the character and grounds him. After Pierce Brosnan, it was important to go a 180 degrees opposite to try and reinvent him."

"At that point, I think the franchise was going to become a bit of a farce. It had to go totally to the opposite."

Quote of the week

"I want to do the edgy independent movies, like (Leonardo) DiCaprio did, but you have to balance it out ... It's about carving out your leading-man role. Fight Club? Yes! X-Men? Yes! All sorts of different films. American Beauty? Yes! I don't know if I could pull off a Kevin Spacey, but I'll try."

Hathaway learned to love Kym

RICK MCGINNIS
for Metro Canada

FEATURE If you've had anything like a normal life, you've probably known someone like Kym, the character Anne Hathaway plays in Jonathan Demme's Rachel Getting Married — opening next week.

Emotionally draining and endlessly self-justifying, Kym is the centre of her own pre-Copernican emotional universe — she's her own worst enemy, but everyone else's as well, if only because of her inability to tell the difference between honesty and an inability to edit herself.

When Hathaway sits down for an interview after the film's premiere at the Toronto International Film Festival in September, I can't help but tell her that, as much as I respected her performance, I've known my share of Kyms, and time spent with them is like a colonoscopy.

"Thank you," Hathaway laughs. "With or without anesthesia?"

"One of the things I love about Kym is people's reaction to her. I think that's an awesome interpretation of her — Kym is the kind of person I would be friends with and I am friends with. So for me, the hard part was not being compelled to make her likeable.

"I wasn't as concerned with making her sympathetic as much as I wanted to make sure people understood that however she is, whatever your interpretation of her is, she's being absolutely herself.

"She's just being herself, and once I figured that out — and I only figured that out about a month before filming — it was a very gushy moment that helped me realize what love is, and that it really is without limits, preconceived notions or limits, and it opened my heart. This character really changed my life and the way I view the world."

Hathaway's Kym is already attracting Oscar buzz, and one of the journalists at the TIFF table with Hathaway and Demme asks if she feels pleased that she's exceeded the expectations of people who might only know her from films like The Princess Diaries.

Hathaway is visibly irritated by the question, and says that, "I've never defined myself by the way other people did ... It's always been about, 'Be yourself, be yourself.' Well, the person I've always been is an actress."

"Are you saying it wasn't cool to do something completely different?" Demme loudly bursts in, mischievously goading his leading lady.

"Of course it was cool to do something completely different!" she shouts back at the director.

"But not for the reason he was asking me. It wasn't cool because I'd done The Princess Diaries. It was cool because you're a f—king great director, and Kym's an amazing character. That's why it was cool.

"It was cool on its own merit," she says, "not because it was a response to anything."

David Schwimmer, Jada Pinkett Smith, Ben Stiller and Chris Rock have returned to their voice-roles in Madagascar: Escape 2 Africa.

Animal crackers

Voicing animated characters is no easy gig

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

What do Ben Stiller, Chris Rock and Cedric the Entertainer have in common? Well, if you guessed they all deliver the funniest lines in the new animated hit Madagascar: Escape 2 Africa, you'd only be partly right.

Returning to their respective vocal roles from 2005's huge family hit, Madagascar, those funny-men — along with no less than three other voice talents — all come from a stand-up comedy background.

"(Producers are) looking for somebody that can make whatever they write funny or funnier somehow," insists Cedric the Entertainer. "I think the idea is that (comedians) can at least bring it to life because that's the hardest part about it: (Voicing) in a room, doing it by yourself with nobody else to bounce it off of."

It's true. Like most animated films, Madagascar: Escape 2 Africa — in theatres next Friday — recorded most of its performances separately. Sure, it sounds like an easy gig: You read your part, collect a cheque and go home, but as Stiller attests, it's not that simple.

"I think the key is you want it to be fun," says the actor. "If you go (into the recording studio) and you're down or if you're low energy or you're not into it that day, then it's not going to be a good session and you're probably going to have to come back."

This comedy is definitely not short on spirit. Stuck in Madagascar, Alex the lion (Stiller), Marty the zebra (Rock) and the rest of the Manhattan zoo-raised crew try to return home, only to get as far as Africa, where they soon discover their roots.

As with the first film, the jokes are fast, furious and come from all angles — so all that comedic energy must've been an asset ... or was it?

"They encourage ad-libbing and there's a lot of funny stuff in the script, but at the same time (producers are) more concerned with the story," insists Rock.

"I remember the first time meeting with Jeffrey (Katzenberg — head of Dreamworks Animation) and I remember him saying, 'We're working on the story, we'll get the jokes when we get them,' and I was so, like, offended," Rock relents with a laugh. "As I've gotten older and done more (movies), I'm like, 'The story is the hardest part; we will get the jokes when we get them.'"

Wain making Hollywood debut with Role Models

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

FEATURE Writer/director David Wain has been an alternative comedy fixture for over a decade. After acting and writing on the '90s MTV series The State, he went on to direct such projects as Wet Hot American Summer and The Ten.

His latest directorial effort is Role Models — opening next week — which stars Paul Rudd and Seann William Scott as a pair of underachievers who are forced to join a variation of the Big Brothers.

It's the first time that Wain has ever directed for Hollywood, something that he admits made him nervous. "I was really apprehensive, to be honest with you," Wain told Metro. "I had this vision that I would be like Barton Fink. But in many ways I was surprised by how similar it was to independent filmmaking. My daily work schedule was the same. I was still focused on finding the best way to tell the story onscreen. Even more so than in independent film, where I had to wear so many different hats because there were fewer people working on it. In that way it freed me to focus more on directing."

Role Models is certainly the most conventional movie he's ever made, but Wain was still able to wedge his subversive voice into the script and fill the cast with talented comedians, like the scene-stealing, foul-mouthed youngster Bobb'e Thompson.

Still, as with all of Wain's movies, most of the actors are familiar faces who he's collaborated with for years, some as far back as university.

"They're the guys who I banded together with when I was 18 years old, and they also luckily happen to be the funniest people I know."

Though he's now officially part of the Hollywood machine, Wain plans to continue working in independent film. One of the next projects he has in mind is a prequel to his beloved cult comedy Wet Hot American Summer.

"It would take place the same summer in the first day of camp, but now the actors would be 20 years too old instead of ten years too old," he said, jokingly adding, "So far I have not gotten anyone to finance that, but maybe after Role Models I'll be enough of a big shot."

The singing students of Albuquerque's Eastside High are back in High School Musical 3.

Beverly Hills Chihuahua

REVIEW

These days, it seems Hollywood producers are all wondering the same thing: If my dog could speak, what would it say? Well, Beverly Hills Chihuahua is the latest talking animal flick to heed that query and — according to one cheeky chihuahua at least — the answer is, "Oh no she didn't!" Featuring the voices of Drew Barrymore, Andy Garcia and other celebrities, Chihuahua is a harmless "tail" (Ha!) about a snooty, rich lapdog that gets lost in Mexico and must journey back to Rodeo Drive. Along the way, she encounters a mélange of muttering mutts and an annoying animated rat-iguana duo that, in the end, teach us life lessons.

High School Musical 3: Senior Year

REVIEW

It's very likely that only a handful of adults — those with children too young to drive at home — have seen the previous two High School Musical incarnations that follow the dancing and singing students of Albuquerque's Eastside High. This is the first in the series to be made for the big screen — the other entries were made for TV — and it is a much better visual experience for young viewers, with more singing and dancing than the previous two. Adults can actually attend the movie without too much fear. Sure, the storyline is very basic, and squeaky Mickey Mouse-clean — you may doze off occasionally — but there is great energy in this film.

Max Payne

REVIEW

Max Payne is another hit video game-turned-Hollywood blockbuster. As the title character, Mark Wahlberg is an angry, maverick cop who is determined to find the savages who killed his wife and child. Shirking his civic duty, Payne conspires with a sexy assassin — Mila Kunis of That '70s Show — and discovers a dark underworld that may be connected to otherworldly demons. This thriller follows suit in the respect that it certainly seems overly focused on Payne and his quest. By doing so, other aspects (the central plot twist for instance) are too obvious and unembellished. That said, Payne knows its limitations and makes no apologies; it has absolutely stunning choreography and brooding Wahlberg was made for this kind of role. Further, and maybe most importantly, this movie is big, brash and perhaps better than any other video-game adaptation out there.

Pride and Glory

REVIEW

Filmmaker Gavin O'Connor (Miracle) better hope that fans of this summer's blockbuster The Incredible Hulk follow its lead actor Edward Norton over to his new film, Pride and Glory. Unfortunately, I seriously doubt most fanboys care much for a melodrama about a family of cops. Besides, there have been more flicks made about corrupt New York City cops than Dunkin' has donuts. In this one, Norton stars as Ray Tierney, a traumatized detective who returns to the force at the urging of his police chief father (Jon Voight) to investigate the mysterious murder of four of NYPD's finest. Exploring themes of loyalty and integrity, Ray is torn between his close-knit family and the NYPD, forced to confront his own pained morality. With powerful performances, a dark and melancholic tone, and a climactic fight scene that delivers the punches with, well, a punch, Pride and Glory may be all too familiar but it's a respectfully intense ride nonetheless.

Steve Gow/For Metro Canada

W.

REVIEW

Perhaps the most surprising aspect of Oliver Stone's impressive film is just how rounded of a portrayal he's made of George W. Bush. Make no mistake, Stone does not present Bush as a strong leader by any stretch of the imagination, but he does at least explain how he managed to make his many mistakes in a manner that seems plausible. Josh Brolin perfectly captures all of Bush's mannerisms without ever slipping into the realm of a Saturday Night Live impersonation. It's a truly exceptional piece of acting that solidifies Brolin's sudden rise to prominence in Hollywood. Similar glowing comments can be made about the entire cast including Richard Dreyfus' subtly malicious Dick Cheney and Thandie Newton's chameleon-like transformation into Condoleezza Rice.

Heartbreak and Intimacy

New disc lets Bloc Party frontman Kele Okereke dish on latest split

IAN NATHANSON
for Metro Canada

Whatever reputed breakdown occurred between Kele Okereke and his former significant other in late 2007, the singer-guitarist frontman for Bloc Party needed an outlet to vent his feelings on the matter.

"Translucent and sun-bleached skin, when did you get so L.A./How can you desert me after all we've been through/Stuck on a dream that somewhere it's better/You'll be the one missing out," Okereke sings on the electronica-meets-new wave One Month Off from the British outfit's third full-length, Intimacy.

"A lot of stuff went on in the past year with my personal life that really had a huge effect on me," Okereke tells Metro, though tight-lipped on the details. "I didn't want to try and think too much about what I was saying — I wanted to write from an emotional perspective ... just get it out there and move on to the next thing."

"But in writing songs for this record, I want people to see this not only about a relationship breakup but also a celebration of a love — about falling in love and being in love. It doesn't always have to be negative."

Bloc Party frontman Kele Okereke, foreground, says recording his band's new album, Intimacy, allowed him to vent about a recent breakup. The album was released earlier this week.

Besides, there has been enough negative-leaning talk about Okereke — from British media speculation about his sexuality to a reported backstage dust-up between the 27-year-old and the Sex Pistols' Johnny Rotten during a summer music festival in Spain — that it almost overshadows Bloc Party's more significant changes of late.

First, Okereke, guitarist Russell Lissack, bassist Gordon Moakes and drummer Matt Tong have ditched the traditional indie-rock stylings of their 2005 success story, Silent Alarm, and 2007 follow-up, A Weekend In the City. For Intimacy, Bloc Party veers into electronica-based territory and experimentation with Okereke's vocals — though maintaining Tong's fierce backbeats.

"In the 21st century,

"A lot of stuff went on in the past year with my personal life that really had a huge effect on me."

Kele Okereke

rock music should be taking more from electronica," Okereke says. "I know many bands will tell you the best records have been made between the 1950s and the 1970s, but with all the new technology available, why not have rock music embrace something a bit newer?"

Second, the band has opted to follow what's becoming a recent trend in the industry by releasing the new album digitally in August, two months ahead of this past Tuesday's physical CD release.

"I remember being a 16-year-old and how it was such a big deal when I bought a record by a band I liked and everyone else bought the same record and we were all talking about that record at the same time," Okereke says. "Now that we've built up an international fan base, why not just deliver a record to our fans at the same time, rather than have somebody leak out the record online long before it comes out?"

MTV strikes Beatles video game deal

GAMING MTV Networks announced yesterday a deal to use songs by the Beatles in a custom video game similar to its popular Rock Band game, marking the groundbreaking band's first major plunge into digital music.

There is no set release date or sale price for the game, but it is due to be ready for a release in about a year, said MTV Networks and the Beatles' Apple, which handles the affairs of the group that broke up in 1970 after revolutionizing rock 'n' roll in the 1960s.

The companies released few details about the game, which will be a custom video and not a Rock Band-brand game. REUTERS

• Pink, Funhouse: The recently divorced pop star warns, "I'm going to get in trouble, I want to start a fight," on debut single So What. Thank goodness Pink makes poking fun at our celebrity-obsessed culture sound like such a riot.

• The Clash, Live at Shea Stadium: On this 1982 recording, the best punk band of all time may have been merely opening for the Who, but they still whipped the crowd into a frenzy with a barrage of classics like London Calling and Rock the Casbah, among others.

• Lord, Deadache: This costume-clad heavy metal outfit from Finland takes glam rock to the next ghoulish level. Full of monster riffs of tortured '80s metal and songs like Man Skin Boots and Raise Hell In Heaven, Deadache might be the ideal soundtrack to your Halloween party.

It's been a busy couple of weeks with a lot of stuff dropping into my inbox, into my mailbox or mysteriously across my desks (I have several offices and thus several desks). Like the annual raking of the leaves, I thought it was time for some cleaning up.

• The Last Pogo DVD: Finally, someone has issued a proper visual document of one of the most infamous events in Canadian rock history: The "riot" at the Horseshoe Tavern on Dec. 1, 1978. Every music fan should have a copy (the-lastpogo.net).

• They Want Us to Buy Vinyl Again? Listening to actual vinyl records is on the rise again, which has precipitated a series of vinyl re-releases by everyone from Led Zeppelin to the Sex Pistols. Let's see: They got us buying vinyl, then converted us to tapes, told us to upgrade to CDs, wanted us to move to digital downloads ... and now we're back to vinyl? Talk about the circle of life.

• Battle of the Divas: While all the attention has gone to the cage match between new albums from AC/DC and Guns N' Roses,

Madonna apparently made her ex Guy Ritchie leave home to dine on burgers.

there's a catfight set for next week when Britney Spears, Beyoncé, Leona Lewis and Christina Aguilera all release new albums. Too bad Mariah Carey is sitting this one out.

• Madonna's Divorce: Rumours were that Madge wouldn't allow anything other than steamed fish and chicken to be served in the house. If Guy wanted a burger, he had to go down to the Punchbowl, his local pub. Don't feel bad for him, though. Part of the hushed-up settlement involves him getting Ashcombe House, their $20-million, 1,200-acre estate in Wiltshire, England. He might even get $20 million more just so he keeps his mouth shut.

Madonna, meanwhile, is worth at least $600 million US. She's fine.

• Johnny Rotten Butter: The former singer of the Sex Pistols is starring in a British TV commercial for Country Life Butter. No, I'm not making that up.

• Since it's Halloween ... A poll out this week on the 20 creepiest celebrities named Marilyn Manson at No. 1 with a 76 per cent "creep factor." Michael Jackson finished second and Courtney Love ranked 11th. Keith Richards was 14th.

• Op-Ed Bono: He's got a new gig writing columns for the New York Times. This just goes to show that if I can get a column, anyone can.

Television

In brief

TELEVISION Sci Fi Channel has ordered a reality competition that pits 12 contestants against one another in a series of video game challenges to find the best all-around gamer in the United States.

The show, which has the working title of GameQuest, is set to premiere in the first quarter.

It will feature top game titles from various studios, and includes physical challenges that bring video games to life, as well as elimination challenges in an arena before hundreds of spectators. Contestants will compete for a prize package that includes $100,000 and trips to future World Cyber Games events.

Sci Fi said the show will be the perfect arena to capitalize on a common household activity in order to broaden the channel's brand.

TELEVISION E! Entertainment Television has picked up its half-hour reality series Denise Richards: It's Complicated for a second season. Production will begin early next year on the series, which averaged 1.1 million viewers per episode in its first season. REUTERS

There's Life on Mars in reworked show

BACK TO LIFE After following its demolition derby production history over the course of the summer, and imagining its primetime premiere as an event somewhere between the opening weekend of Gigli and the second season of Joey, I was pleasantly surprised by ABC's reworking of the BBC's time-traveling cop series Life On Mars.

This is probably why you haven't heard much from me on the subject — it's so much harder, and much less fun, to say something nice when there are so many nasty subjects abounding on the crowded plateau of TV news. Still, it's turned into a decent bit of TV that might actually get a chance to attract an audience in this season's leper's parade of shows.

Besides Harvey Keitel, who manages to be both ubiquitous and watchable — try saying the same thing about Jimmy Smits, say, or Jude Law a few years ago — one of the show's real pleasures is Michael Imperioli's take on the role of Ray Carling. As played by Dean Andrews on the British show, Carling was a relentless thug, too dim to ever take the place of his hero, DCI Gene Hunt, but with an endearing, sometimes dog-like side that redeemed him.

Imperioli's Carling is much smarter, a wisecrack machine loaded to the handlebar moustache with musky '70s masculinity. "When this came along I really liked the character, I really liked the story, I liked the ideas they had for casting, and I liked being able to stay home with my family," Imperioli told the New York Times in a profile of the actor this week, one that also speculated on the show's rocky production history, which saw an almost total recasting of the show after a pilot was filmed, and a move from Los Angeles to New York City for both the setting and production.

"It's turned into a decent bit of TV that might actually get a chance to attract an audience in this season's leper's parade of shows."

"It is rare that a show gets piloted twice," said Gary Newman, co-chairman of 20th Century Fox Television, one of the show's producers. "I think a big part of it was, you look at the version shot in Los Angeles, and it just didn't feel like 1973; it wasn't authentic. The wardrobe, the hair, the music, the buildings — it honestly is a kind of an amazing reproduction of the era."

Run through my handy television execution decoding ring, that means that the people behind the L.A. version had better have friends at the other networks, and that the New York crew had better have a few too if the show doesn't end up getting renewed. I'm quite happy to tuck into my meal of crow at this point, if only in the hope that the success of the ABC version will finally get a DVD box set of the BBC original on the store shelves here.

RESTORE YOUR VITALITY!

MAINTAIN YOUR REGULARITY!

LOSE WEIGHT!

Why is it so important to cleanse your organism?
The human body is a very sophisticated machine; be it through the interactions between organs controlling our emotions and energy. If jammed with toxins and waste, these organs can't adequately transport nutrients necessary to sustain good health and well being.

Q&A

Where do these toxins come from?
Over eating, coffee, alcohol, fermentation, refined sugars, food additives, calcareous water, pollution, etc.

Who can use a DETOX program?
Anyone having reached puberty. In brief, anyone wanting to stay in shape and that desires to keep his organism working at an optimal level.

Rock won't hold back

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

One of the more exciting aspects of HBO Canada finally starting up in the Great White North — it launched yesterday — is that, along with cutting-edge dramas, it will also be bringing the funny.

One man who knows this better than most is actor and comedian Chris Rock. "HBO is stand-up comedy," Rock says with a laugh. "It's the only place you really get to do it."

Rock should know. About to stun Canuck audiences with a hard-hitting fifth HBO stand-up comedy special entitled Kill the Messenger — it premieres tomorrow night — Rock will again push boundaries on a measure of topics, including the U.S. election, parenthood and race, with his patented unhinged but honest manner.

"It's not just language, it's topic, too," Rock explains. "Sometimes people say, 'Why don't you do a stand-up movie?' Because if I do a joke about abortion, it's going to make it an X (rating)."

Rock further points out most people don't realize the numerically based language constraints that sidle making a film. For example, if you script a particular word that starts with a P and defines a certain part of the female anatomy "more than two times, you're an X (rating)," says Rock.

"There are all these weird little rules that just (define a movie). HBO — they just let you do whatever you want to do."

Cox moves to Cougar Town

NEW GIG Courteney Cox, welcome to Cougar Town.

ABC has ordered a comedy pilot in which the former Friends star will play a newly single 40-year-old mom with a 17-year-old son. It comes from Scrubs creator Bill Lawrence.

"Forty-year-old women on TV are so beautiful and perfect and wrinkle-free," said Lawrence. "People don't do the reality of it, and there is a real comedy area about a woman who is talking about Botox, about having sex with the lights on and how her body is changing." REUTERS

Cummings rekindles his roots

Canadian star sells out 2 shows at Casino Nova Scotia

PHILIP CROUCHER
philip.croucher@metronews.ca

Burton Cummings didn't want "corny." He was trying to avoid "syrupy," too.

"I'm too old to put out something that will embarrass me in five or six years," the 60-year-old Cummings said about his first studio album in 18 years, titled Above the Ground. "I concentrated a lot on the lyrics. I wanted them to be observational and a bit existential. I think it's a good collection of songs."

The Canadian music legend and former lead singer with the Guess Who can hold his head high as his new CD, which hits stores this Tuesday, is a strong collection of songs that contain powerful lyrics and a sound he's grown famous for in 40 years of rock 'n' roll. Cummings had been looking at making an eighth solo studio album for several years, but with the recent success he and former Guess Who guitarist Randy Bachman were finding on tour together, the project was put on hold.

"You'd never find a better guy to have 12 or 15 beers with. It was just magical times."

Burton Cummings on Kurt Winter

That was until Bachman had recent shoulder surgery, which put him on the shelf for several months. This gave Cummings the time he needed to work on the new album, which for the first time in his career is written entirely by him.

"Had Randy not had this operation, I don't know if this album would exist yet, because we were very, very busy as Bachman-Cummings," he said. "We were actually thinking of doing an album of original stuff, or at least another jukebox."

Tracks like Crazy If You Mess With the Gods and We Just Came From the U.S.A. are tracks to rock out to on the album. There is also Kurt's Song, a tribute to the late Kurt Winter, a band mate and friend who passed away in 1997.

"I miss him dearly still now," Cummings said of Winter. "You'd never find a better guy to have 12 or 15 beers with. It was just magical times."

Cummings will play songs from Above the Ground tonight and tomorrow in back-to-back sold-out shows at Casino Nova Scotia's Schooner Room at 8 p.m.

Cummings is touring with the same band on the record and the show will include hits from both the Guess Who era and his solo albums.

"I know why people are coming," he said. "I would never go on stage for 90 minutes and shove new stuff down people's throats because they would go home unhappy."

Cummings will play back-to-back sold-out shows at Casino Nova Scotia's Schooner Room this weekend.

Entertainment in brief

PRIZE The $25,000 Portia White Prize will be handed out during the third annual Creative Nova Scotia awards gala on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at the Heritage Hall at Pier 21. The three nominees are singer Mary Jane Lamond of Glencoe, Inverness Co., sculptor and blacksmith John Little of East Dover, and ceramics artist Walter Ostrom of Lunenburg. The gala awards show takes place following the all-day Creative Nova Scotia conference, which begins Saturday at 9 a.m. at the Delta Halifax.

MUSIC Nova Scotia's provincial men's choir, Nova Voce, will present a concert titled A Perfect Fifth on Sunday at Bethany United Church in Halifax at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $20 for adults and $15 for seniors and students. They can be bought from the Westphal Family Music Store, choir members, the Madrigal and at the door.

JAZZ Halifax's Laura Healy has been named the new artistic director for the JazzEast Rising Association, which produces the annual TD Canada Trust Atlantic Jazz Festival. Healey has worked the past three years with JazzEast as an education and outreach co-ordinator, and was principle organizer of the association's Creative Music Workshop.

Stars are coming out for all age groups

philip.croucher@metronews.ca

They're a band that thinks about fans of all ages.

Montreal's indie pop group Stars is playing two shows in Halifax this weekend. The first is a sold-out performance at the Marquee Club on Saturday night, with an all-ages show following on Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Matthew's United Church.

"We have a lot of fans in the (18-and-under) age group and it's really unfair to them that they can't come see the (bar) show, as they've supported the band and they love the record," said Stars singer Amy Millan. "So we find it's important that we play some all-ages shows so the kids can come. It's not the drinking, crowd loud."

The five-member band is in Halifax just four months after headlining Summersonic on Citadel Hill's Garrison Grounds in July. The band is still touring in support of their 2007 album In Our Bedroom After the War, which is receiving international recognition — the record is up for the 2008 Polaris Music Prize, an annual award honouring creativity and diversity in Canadian recorded music as voted by music critics.

On this current tour, Stars is playing in venues across Atlantic Canada with Hey Rosetta! as the opening act. They'll then play other Canadian dates before starting next year with sold-out shows in both Australia and Japan.

"For us, the listener is the star and we're just trying to create a soundtrack to your life — the movie that is your life," Millan said when talking about the band's popularity

Protesters mob Olsens' event

CONTROVERSY A book-signing for fans of twin actresses Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen took an ugly turn when they were bombarded by a legion of angry protestors wearing mocking masks of the pair, imdb.com reports.

Fans lined up to meet the 22-year-old moguls, who were recently celebrating the release of their new coffee table book, Influence. But the pair were stunned to find animal-rights activists shouting outside the event — part of a campaign launched by People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA) against the stars for their fashion choices. “People who still wear fur haven’t woken up to the fact that a big, dead animal on your back makes you look like a troll,” a PETA spokesperson tells WENN. “Compassionate fashionistas know that real beauty comes from the heart.”

Victoria to pose in underwear

PEOPLE Victoria Beckham is set to follow in the footsteps of her soccer ace husband David when she strips down to her underwear to model for fashion house Armani, imdb.com reports.

The former Spice Girl will debut as the “worldwide testimonial” for Emporio Armani Women’s underwear in the spring/summer 2009 campaign. The collaboration comes months after David Beckham stopped traffic by posing scantily clad for the designer. His ad was unveiled on a massive billboard in California last June.

“Who better than Victoria Beckham to launch our new global underwear campaign?” Giorgio Armani said in a statement.

“It was supposed to show me being sexier and more mature,” she says. “The idea was: Look at me — I am a woman, growing up. I had male managers at the time, who were really excited about the photo shoot. The truth is, though, I was in way over my head. I remember calling my dad and saying: ‘I screwed up. I went too far and did not stand up for myself.’”

Joe's take on celebrities

don’t enjoy thinking about the Olsen Twins, but the crusading pinheads at PETA spent a few hours yesterday protesting the fact that the girls exercise their prerogative to wear, gasp, fur. You know PETA, the group that does its part to end cruelty to animals by showing us pictures of naked models and sending out such moral paragons like Heather Mills McCartney to publicly shame celebrities who choose to wear fur, eat meat, smile or tell them that the Easter Bunny doesn’t exist.

PETA’s targeting of the mini-moguls doesn’t end with public demonstrations, though. They’ve also created an online game featuring characters named Hairy Kate and Trashy Trollsen, displaying the kind of rapier wit that always seems to grace people who are the most earnest about the least important things.

Now that the PETA loonies are stepping up their anti-Olsen onslaught, I’m no longer going to be able to perversely enjoy the sensation of my stomach turning as I watch their wretched performances in New York Minute, It Takes Two or Full House reruns. I’m going to have to sympathize with them.

Although, come to think of it, they spent their formative years around Bob Saget, which should be enough to earn them sympathy, even without PETA’s antics.

Recipe of the day

Poached Salmon with Dill Sauce

INGREDIENTS:

- 4 fresh or frozen and thawed salmon or halibut steaks, 3/4 inch thick (about 6 oz / 175 g each)
1 cup (250 mL) dry white wine or low-sodium chicken broth
1 small yellow onion, thickly sliced
2 lemon slices
4 sprigs parsley
4 whole black peppercorns

DILL SAUCE:

- 1 tbsp (15 mL) butter or margarine
1 tbsp (15 mL) all-purpose flour
2 tsp (10 mL) finely chopped fresh dill or 3/4 tsp (4 mL) dried dill weed
1/2 tsp (2 mL) sugar
1/8 tsp (0.5 mL) salt
1 large egg yolk, lightly beaten
1 tsp (5 mL) lemon juice

METHOD:

1. Rinse fish and pat dry. In a large skillet, combine the wine, onion, lemon slices, parsley and peppercorns. Bring to a boil. Arrange salmon in a single layer in wine mixture. Bring back to a boil. Lower the heat and simmer, covered, for

5 to 8 minutes or until fish flakes when tested with a fork. With a slotted spatula, carefully remove salmon from the skillet; keep warm. Strain and reserve 1 cup of the cooking liquid.
2. To prepare dill sauce, in a small saucepan, melt butter over moderate heat. Whisk in flour, dill, sugar and salt, and cook for 1 minute or until bubbly. Add reserved cooking liquid. Cook, whisking constantly, until mixture starts to thicken. Slowly stir about 1/2 cup (125 mL) of the hot mixture into egg yolk, then return this mixture to the saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly, for 1 to 2 minutes or until mixture thickens (do not boil). Stir in lemon juice.
3. Spoon some of the dill sauce over the salmon. Serve with remaining sauce.
